Why Don't We Do It? A couple of years ago the truck growers of Long Beach, Miss, organized and took it into their heads to plant radishes for the early Northern markets. They started out and grew a few barrels of the best. Last year they shipped thirty-two cars. This year they will put out sixty carloads. It takes 160 barrels to make a carload. Each barrel contains forty dozen bunches. Average net price received, 15 cents per dozen bunches. This makes $5 per barrel, $960 per car, or $47,600 for the season. They have quit cotton, and they don't ship by express. Everything goes in carloads. Now, Mississippi can't grow anything that Texas can't grow twice never get ahead of one another. over. Why don't we do it?-Halletsville Herald.

The experience of the Mississippi agriculturists should furnish a valuable object lesson to the farmers of Texas. It is a fact that the radish of this State is as fine and as palatable as that grown anywhere in the South, and at $960 per car they are more profitable than cotton, and, incidentally, are immunes from the ravages of the boll weevil. Last year there was a heavy demand for radishes throughout the North. The supply was never excessive and throughout the season the vegetable maintained a high price in the restaurants and in hotels of the entire United States radishes serve the purpose of decorative purposes for the table as well as affording a relish that make them delicacies to some persons. Whether they appeal to the taste of the farmer himself makes no difference, however. They will afford a comfortable income to the man who will "put in" a few acres of them, and it is from this viewpoint that they should be considered.-Houston, verance and ability. The new zibelines, which are a favorite material for the elaborate dress-gown, are anore beautiful than ever, and their softness and pliability adapts them admirably to the flowing lines of the new modes. Rich satin-faced cloths will not easily lose prestige, and this season they are shown in the levely fuchsia hues that are so fashionable. Straw color, buff and pale pink are among the delicate tints for which much favor is shown.

One of the fancies of the season is open-work embroidery, in either English or Madeira fashion, over a soft, contrasting color. Fringes are snore popular than ever and narzow Tom Thumb fringe dyed to match the dress material is very stylish, but of all trimmings braids are most in demand and they possess innumerable attractive features.

The separate blouse is more popular than ever, and the unlined shirt-waist made of fine faced cloth bids fair to be a popular garment.

Remarkable Achievements of a Bright and Ambitious Negro Boy.

Atlanta Constitution:

Of all the stories of "boys who have risen," there is none more remarkable than that of Sir Conrad Reeves, the Chief Justice of the British West Indian colony of Barbados, who died the other day.

He was a ragged mulatto urchin, earning a few cents a day by selling newspapers in the streets of Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. Bridgetown, the principal town of Barbados. The proprietor of one of Sold by Druggists, 75c. the newspapers saw that he was a smart lad, and took him into his office as a reporter.

At that time journalism in Barbados was very sleepy and oldfashioned. All the papers were contented to print the same news and Conrad Reeves revolutionized things. He introduced the "scoop," and soon worked his way up to the editor's chair.

That did not satisfy him. He saw that the journalistic field was a limited one in Barbados, so he studied for the law in his spare time: "I am going to be a judge if I live long enough," he told his friends.

They laughed at him. The idea of a mulatto becoming a judge seemed too preposterous. Only white men had ever been appointed to that dignity, and there was a rule that no Barbadian, even if he were white, should be made a judge in Barbados, lest he should favor his numerous friends and relatives when delivering his judgments.

and became a barrister. Returning to Barbados, he set up in practice, but had a hard struggle for many years with local prejudices. People did not care to entrust their legal affairs to the young man whom they had known as a ragged newshoy.

He "won out," by dint of persercame the leader of the Barbados bar, and distinguished himself so remarkably that all rules and pre-The prophecy that velvet and cedents were broken through, and by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian fube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services,
